PROF. BURR TELLS CITY CLUB WATER FAMINE , PERIL.

Present Supply Constantly Used to the Limit, and Once an Absolute Drought Was Only 48 Hours Off-Conference of Civie Bodles to Discuss Situation.

After a discussion of the need of additional water supply, the City Club at a meeting lest night passed a resolution calling a conference of the various civic bodies interested in the question for the purpose of starting a movement to have the city authorities call for a special session of the Legislature to repeal the Smith law, or the so-called Ramapo grab, signed by Gov. Odell The Smith law prevents the city authorities from getting water in Dutchess county. Gov. Odell gave as his reason for signing it that the city's quest for water worked a great injury to mill owners along the watersheds, and that if necessary the city could have a special session of the Legislature called to repeal it.

The principal speakers at last night's neeting were Prof. William H. Burr of Columbia College and Rudolph Hering, who were members of Mayor Low's commission on additional water supply, and Col. Robert Grier Monroe. who was Comger of Water Supply, Gas and Electrici in the Low administration. Wheeler H. Peckham presided

Prof. Burr attacked the reasons given by Gov. Odell for signing the Smith bill. He gave figures to show the grave danger to the city of a water famine if the present water supply was not increased. He said that if the recommendations of the commission, of which he was a member, were carried out the city's water supply would be increased twofold.

During the last few years he said there had here no low weter or dry years; but had been no low water or dry years; but it wasn't necessary to go back many years to find conditions likely to happen at any time. Within a year, he said, it was safe to find conditions likely to happen at any time. Within a year, he said, it was safe to assume that the daily consumption of water in this city would be about three hundred million gallons daily.

Then Prof. Burr went on to show that between 1870 and 1900 there were at least ten years when the supply of water furnished by the Croton watershed went far below the amount now needed by the city daily.

There are a number of reservoirs to There are a number of reservoirs to make up the deficiency, should there be a dry season, and when the new Croton reservoir is finished in about a year, the reservoir is finished in about a year, the total storage volume will be about 6,800,000.000 gallons. That doesn't mean the amount of water available, Prof. Burr said; it means the amounts in the reservoirs when they are full.

"If they are full at the beginning of a dry year," he said, "it is not possible or practicable to draw the last gallon in them, as when the water becomes shallow it is dirty and muckly. In the time of a water famine, however, people are glad to take what they can get. what they can get.

Yet it is safe to say that the amount of

Yet it is safe to say that the amount of water in the reservoirs fit for using is about two-thirds, or 4,400,000,000. In six consecutive dry months in 1870 the flow of the Croton River was so slow that it would take 4,000,000,000 to make up the deficiency. In 1876, another dry year, it would take up 4,200,000,000 to make up the deficiency."

Prof. Burr quoted other figures to show that the city was using its water supply up to the limit. If two dry years came in succession, he said, which was liable to happen at any time, one-third of the city would be brought to the edge of a water famine.

"Back in 1894 or 1895," Prof. Burr said, "if rain hadn't fallen in a certain forty-eight

"Back in 1894 or 1895," Prof. Burr said, "If rain hadn't fallen in a certain forty-eight hours, the entire surplus supply of water would have been consumed. No one knew, except the city officials interested, of the narrow margin to which the city had been brought. Fortunately we escaped that disaster, but we may be brought face to face with the same conditions any day, and this was realized by the Commission on Additional Water Supply when it made its report.

Prof. Burr told of the plans of the comresident to the increased water supply from Fishkill and Wappinger Creeks, and thence by tunnel under the Hudson River to the Catskills, where, he said, was the largest and heet site for a reservoir in the civilized world.

"Now as to the features of the Smith hill." Prof. Burr continued, "I suppose that that bill became a law for the reason, as stated by the Governor, that it would be within the power of the city of New York to work hardship and injustice to the small property owners and mill owners along the watersheds. I believe that generally the mill owners were not much interested.

"As to the question of compensation for damage to the owners of property along "As to the question of compensation for clamage to the owners of property along the creeks, that was thoroughly discussed by the commission. An expert was employed who said that an ample estimate of the damage would be $1,750,000."

Prof. Burr explained that there would really be no damage to the mill owners.

really be no damage to the mill owners. Where the water power was taken, the city would supply steam power. He pointed out that 60 per cent. of the mills along Wappinger Creek were operated by steam power, although along Fishkill Creek 50 per cent. of the mills depended on water "I should think it would be wise," Prof.

Burr said, "to enter upon agitation for egislation that will enable the city to utilize the water supply of Fishkill and Wappinger the water supply of Fishkin and wappinger reeks. Incorporate such legislative pro-visions as will be necessary to compensate for any indirect injury to the mill owners. It doubt if there will be any compensation

"The situation of the water question is one of the gravest importance and one that cannot be considered too seriously. If next year or two years running there should be a low water supply the condi-lions would be frightful."

Mr. Hering talked along the same lines

Mr. Hering taked along the same lines as Prof. Burr.

He was followed by Col. Monroe, who said that the great trouble at the present lime was that no one had any definite idea as to what action to take. He said he didn't think that the city administration had any definite policy as to the question of asking the Governor for special legislation.

He didn't expect any agitation during the summer or in the fall, because of the big political conventions and the Presidential campaign. Then there would be a dispute between the Republicans at Albany and the Democrats in the City Hall as to the form of the commission to carry on the work and how the money should be spent.

Wheeler H. Peckham said that some action should be taken. The question was a paramount one and he never knew of a situation, where action was needed more.

ation where action was needed more.

Horace E. Deming introduced the resolution calling for a conference on the question of increasing the city's water supply and a fiscussion on the subject of necessary legisation. The resolution was adopted.

THE SUPREME COURT CALENDAR. Only 282 Cases Left Undecided, a Gain of 24 for the Term.

WASHINGTON, June 1 .- The calendar of the United States Supreme Court at adjournnent vesterday was in better condition than at any other time since 1860, fewer cases going over than at the close of any other term in that period. When the court adjourned last June there were 306 cases on the calendar awaiting hearing. During the term 425 cases were filed, making a total of 731. The court disposed of 449 of these, leaving 282 cases still on the calendar, which is a net gain of 24 for the term.

At the close of the previous term thirteen cases which had been argued were carried over, while this year they number five only. These were the Clift oleomargarine case, the Humbird-Avery case, which is a Northern Pacific land grant dispute from Minnesota; the Creede and Cripple Creek mining case, the Perez-Fernandez partnership suit from Porto Rico, and the Crawford-Burke suit from Chicago, which involves liability for selling out a customer by a bucketshop. Three other cases attacking the validity of the Wisconsin Anti-Boycott law, which had been argued, were restored to the docket for reargument at the next term. teen cases which had been argued were restored to the docket for reargument at the next term.

Among the most important decisions of the term were the Northern Securities merger case, the California Tile Trust case, the Alien Anarchist exclusion case, the Chinese deportation cases, the Porto Rico non-alien immigration case, affirming the validity of the tea inspection, the filled cheese and oleomargarine laws, the Maryland election law, the Alabama and Virginia negro disfranchisement laws and the reclassification of second class mail matter by the Post Office Department.

NO CENSORSHIP OF "ADS."

The Postmaster-General Explains the Recent Fraud Order Against Advertisements. WASHINGTON, June 1 .- Postmaster-General Payne made public this afternoon the following statement in explanation of the Post Office Department's attitude toward patent medicine advertisements:

patent medicine advertisements:

A large number of complaints having been received by the First Assistant Postmaster-General protesting vigorously against the United States mails being used for the purpose of circulating newspapers and other literature containing advertisements of alleged cures for loss of manhood, vitality, &c., the Acting Postmaster-General transmitted a number of these advertisements to the Assistant Attorney-General for the Post Office Department, with the request for an opinion as to whether or not their transmitted through the mails constituted a violation of law. Mr. Robb, the then Assistant Attorney-General for the Post Office Department, rendered an opinion holding such advertisements a violation of what is known as the "obscene law."

The only intention which has ever been entertained by the administrative officers is to suppress the advertisements which the law officer of the Department has held to be obscene. Of course, the Post Office Department has never had any intention of starting a crusade upon patent medicines or of establishing a censorship upon advertisements printed in newspapers. There has been no change in the policy or practice of the Department. The facts simply are that certain abuses having been called to its attention it has acted thereon as required by law.

In the regular course of business in the that certain abuses having been characteristics attention it has acted thereon as required by law.

In the regular course of business in the office of the Assistant Attorney-General a number of cases were presented in which the so-called cures for lost manhood and lost vitality were complained of as being worthless, as well as the literature of the company selling the article being obscene. Analysis of these so-called remedies developed the fact that in most instances the ingredients were simply starch and sugar. In a number of instances the pills and drugs contained ingredients injurious to the system and forbidden by law to be sold. It having thus appeared that these companies were defrauding the public by means of false and fraudulent representations made through the mains, the issuance of fraud orders was recommended to the Postmaster-General and accordingly issued by him. No action has been contemplated by the Department save in those case of obscenity and fraud.

OLD BOYS' CLUB ORGANIZED. It Is Made Up of Men Who Cast Their Votes for Frement and Lincoln.

WASHINGTON, June 1 .- The "Old Boys" Club of the District of Columbia," made thence by tunnel under the Hudson River to the Catskills, where, he said, was the largest and best site for a reservoir in the civilized world.

To cerry out these plans would mean the expenditure of $60,000,000, but it would also mean, at the end of five or six years, relief to the city by its water supply being doubled.

Now as to the features of the Smith voted for Lincoln and served throughout the civil war, was made temporary secre-tary. A committee was appointed to draw up a plan of permanent organization. Four years ago a similar oganization was formed in Kansas and has since been in-strumental in doing considerable good work for the Republican party.

DANGER IN TARGET PRACTICE. Stringent Order to Prevent a Repetitor

of the Disaster on the Misseur WASHINGTON, June 1 .- As a result of the recent explosion of powder in a gun on the Missouri, resulting in the loss of more than thirty lives, Secretary of the Navy Moody has issued stringent regulations for the purpose of preventing similar occurrences. Additional precautions are prescribed which will prevent making any records in rapid firing. The special order containing the new regulations is to be posted in every

In the case of large calibre guns, where sponging from the chamber is impracticable, the danger from flarebacks or from the presence of inflammable gases or bits of burning material in the bore after firing must be avoided by making sure that all parts of the bore are clear before the charge for the succeeding round is hoisted above the turret floor. In order to make sure that all danger of a premature ignition of charge while being loaded has passed, a sufficient interval of time must be allowed to elapse after the breech plug is open for the gas and smoke in the chamber and bore to dissipate; and the ammunition car shall not be hoisted to the loading position until after it has been determined by careful inspection that no burning residue remains in the chamber and that a clear view through the gun shows the chamber and bore to be free from gas.
